GoGlobal Suites lure tenants downtown

March 6, 2008

By ROBERT ELFINGER

Leasing has begun for downtown Northbrook's GoGlobal Office Suites, 1363 Shermer Road, a high-tech luxury office building that was built last year.

The office spaces, with close proximity to the Northbrook Metra station, are ideal for attorneys, consultants, therapists, traders and software company representatives who must travel downtown on a regular basis, said Jeremy Lyons, vice president of GoGlobal Northbrook, LLC.

All suites are equipped with a complimentary communications package consisting of one digital phone line with voice mail, one executive desk phone and one ultra-high-speed Internet connection. Tenants also may choose from a wide variety of customized office amenities, such as flat panel televisions with digital cable.

All utilities are taken care of in the lease agreement, meaning tenants will be without monthly bills except for long distance calling. "The only thing tenants will have to worry about is their business," Lyons said.

Four of the 47 office suites are leased, but none is occupied yet. Suites range in price from $1,100 to $2,500 per month depending on size, which ranges from 200 square feet to 450 square feet.

The building contains three conference rooms, one of which includes a wet bar, a pool table and lounge area. All tenants will have access to the rooms for specific periods of time during the week. Tenants also can reserve a room when needed.

A shared and staffed receptionist/concierge area is included.

"Unlike other facilities, GoGlobal Office Suites wants to set itself apart with that 'wow' factor for everyone who works here or visits," Lyons said. "From our high-tech conference rooms to modern kitchens to valet parking, we've thought of every detail and met every basic need."
